ABOUT Rhi Jorj

Rhi Jorj has always been involved in music from a young age performing in the chapel choir and then in numerous bands. However this is her first venture under her own name. She takes inspiration for her melodies and words from the North Wales countryside around her and also her Welsh heritage and people. Rhi was diagnosed with the rare disease Addision's in '23 and this was a pivotal juncture in her life as she turned to her music for healing and then leaving her teaching career to perform her music full time. She writes from the heart with her words and melody intertwining telling stories capturing raw emotion and seeking answers. A singer songwriter who is now more than ready to perform and share her music with growing audiences.

FOLLOWERS

Quote:

Rhi has a melodic haunting voice with her Welsh lilt flowing throughout relaxing you to your core... Then Billy comes along and lifts you to the highest point of musical indulgence with his violin playing.

Testimonials

Rhi and Billy's performance at the Old School was absolutely thrilling from start to finish, and the audience loved listening to the duo and singing along. Rhi performed a number of songs from her fantastic album, 'Ysgafn', and the sound of her acoustic guitar and her charming voice combined perfectly with Billy's violin.

There were many highlights, including the song 'Edrych i Lawr' which states the importance of looking up and appreciating the world around us and not looking down at our devices so much. 'Cân Caws' was a definite favourite, and the audience loved joining in the chorus to this fun song which talks about Rhi's love of cheese sandwiches! Rhi's new single, 'Slofi' was another highlight and an opportunity for everyone to reflect on the importance of slowing life down sometimes, living in the moment, and appreciating what we have.
